$30,000 FIRE AT IRMA | AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY GETS $500 | RINK BY-LAWS CARRY

GREAT LOSS BY FIRE AT IRMA

Hotel, Two General Stores and Pool Room Razed to the Ground by Fire that Totals Loss of at Least $30,000.

WILL LIKELY REBUILD

Irma is without a single general store and is also mourning the loss by fire of her hotel and pool room. The fire broke out on Thursday afternoon last at 12.15 P. M. in the general store of Milburn Bros. and before being noticed had gutted the upstairs, which was used as a lodge room. Although several hundred people offered every assistance possible, they were unable to check the flames, which rapidly spread to the adjoining building, owned by J. A. Henderson and used as a hotel. From this building, the fire spread to the pool room, located next door and from there ignited the general store of Chas. Swailes.

Scarcely a breath of wind was blowing at the time, which no doubt was responsible for the flames being confined to but one portion of the town. The lumber yards of the Imperial Lumber Co., which adjoined the east end of the scene of the conflagration escaped, due to the fact that earnest workers concentrated every effort in putting out the flames, where they had sprung up in the lumber piles and surrounding debris. Had the lumber yard have taken fire, nothing could have saved the east end of the town from entire destruction.

Although the total loss has not yet been appraised by the various insurance companies, it is thought that the loss will reach $30,000, about half of which is covered by insurance. Chas. Swailes, who had no insurance whatever, is the heaviest loser, It is thought that all the buildings will be rebuilt.

The origin of the fire is unknown. It is thought that a defective flue was responsible although no indications go to show that it was from this cause.

A later report, however, says that Mr. Henderson will not rebuild his hotel. On Saturday next he intends auctioning the articles saved from the fire.

8 Antelope Arrive for Local Park

Eight antelope, well developed and full grown, arrived here by Sunday's eastbound express for the local buffalo Park and have since been added to the collection in the reserve. The animals were recently purchased by Howard Douglas, Commissioner of Dominion Parks, from Charles Blazier of Brooks, Alberta, who has had the animals in captivity since last spring. They are natives of the country and will make splendid additions to the six that have been in the park for some time past.

MANY FARMERS FACE SERIOUS SITUATION

Farmers of the Gilt Edge district are facing a serious situation due to the fact that no threshing outfits are obtainable with which to thresh their grain, that has now been standing in the fields for a month past. Reports say, however, that the outfit of the French syndicate has been secured and by the end of the present week will be at work in the district. The crops in that section are of a high grade.

GREAT INTEREST BEING TAKEN

The interest being displayed in the newly formed Agricultural Society is certainly to be commended. It is also to be noted that if all the members of the organization were as enthusiastic as its secretary there should be no fear as to the society being pushed to the forefront.

* * *

From the progress that has already been made by those, who will take part in the play to be presented by the local Knights of Pythias, it is likely that the drama will be put on sometime during the course of the next eight weeks. All, who have been alloted parts are taking a great interest in the play.

RINK BY-LAWS PASS BY BIG MAJORITIES

All grounds for fear as to a rink being desired by the ratepayers have been dispelled and Wainwright, falling into line with other towns, will have a modern and up-to-date structure this winter. The vote on both by-laws, although not unanimous, was a most satisfactory one and the town councillors now have every reason to believe that the ratepayers place confidence in them as civic administrators and officials,

As the result of the polls, it is clearly evident that public spirited citizens rule, while it is also pleasing to note that those, who opposed these by-laws on Thursday last, have also fallen into line and have acknowledged on several occasions their willingness to support the venture after such an expression by the majority. In this connection, it might be stated that both parties worked for their seeming interests with the result that twice as many ratepayers presented themselves at the polls than at any other civic by-law. Throughout the entire day, no interest was lost by supporters or opponents and when the official count was made in the evening at least half of the number voting were on hand to ascertain the popular will of the people.

Ry-law 24, relating to the purchase of a site, was opposed by seventeen votes, while seventy-six ballots were registered in its favor. The other by-law was even more favourably supported, fourteen rate-

DISTRICT ORGANIZER BUSH CALLS MEETING OF CONSERVATIVES FOR THIS CONSTITUENCY AT WHICH CANDIDATE WILL BE NOMINATED

Conservative Organizer will be Here to Get Party in Line for Expected Provincial Elections

The call to arms has been sounded and every Conservative in Alexandria is summoned to the organization meeting and convention to be held here on Thursday, November 16th. Mr. O. Bush, the Federal Organizer for the Constituency of Strathcona, has called the time and the place of meeting and from all over the district it has met with unanimous approval.

In view of the fact that a provincial election is probable at almost anytime. it is wisely recognized that steps should be taken at this most opportune occasion of organizing the constituency in preparation for the coming campaign. Local associations have already been formed, party men have started a preliminary campaign and are now shaping the electors in line for the organization of the entire district.

From every corner of the province, expressions have been voiced by Liberals and Conservatives alike, who are desirous of a provincial election. The bye-elections in Southern Alberta have brought out the popular sentiment of the people in that locality, and from what has since transpired, both in and out of the Liberal ranks, it is evident that Premier Sifton will soon call upon the electors of the province and ask for their opinion of his policies.

It is probable that the Conservative convention will also be held on Thursday, at which a candidate will be nominated. No man is at present in the field except Mr. George L. Hudson, whose candidature was unanimously endorsed by a represntative meeting two weeks ago. It is expected that Mr. Hudson will receive the nomination as the standard bearer, as every association in the southern portion of the constituency has expressed most heartily their desire to see him in the field,

After the organization meeting in the afternoon, a mass meeting will be held in the evening and it is clear that every Conservative, who can possibly avail himself of the opportunity, will be present Strong speakers have been secured in addition to Mr. Bush, who is recognized as an able speaker. Included among these will be Mr. F. A. Morrison of Vegreville, Mr. George B. Campbell of Wetaskiwin and other forcible men.

CLEVER QUINTETTE OF ARTISTS DISPLAYED EXCEPTIONAL TALENT

Although greeted by a smaller audience than the abilities of the company deserved, the International Operatic Company made a very commendable showing on Monday evening in the Auditorium, when they presented a splendid collection of grand opera selections.

The company is composed of five accomplished artists, who render a pleasing mixture of solos, duets, trios and quartettes, blending the whole into a pleasing and profitable entertainment to any audience. The company certainly touched the hearts of everyone attending, who were confident that they had received a splendid treat in that line of entertainment.

It is to be regretted that when high class companies of this kind visit town, the ordinary theatre-going public are inclined to suspect that they will not get their money's worth. In fact, it seems that something in the line of a farce is preferred to something educative, instructive and high class.

TOMORROW

Do not forget the First Annual Progressive Euchre Party to be given in the Auditorium tomorrow night. The party will be given by the ladies of the Catholic Church and it is expected that a large number will attend. A light lunch will be served during the evening and it is probable that a dance will be given afterwards.

Rev. D. C. Campbell, agent of the Foreign Bible Society, will hold a meeting in the English Church on Thursday night of this week at 8 P.M. to which all are invited.

PUBLIC MEETING

A meeting of the Conservatives of the constituency of Alexandria will be held on Thursday, the 16th day of November, 1911, in the town of Wainwright, at 4.00 p. m., for the purpose of organizing a district association and if thought advisable to nominate a candidate in the interests of the party. After the meeting, a public mass meeting will be held in the eveving, commencing at 8 o'clock. Addresses will be given by F. A. Morison, Vegreville; George B. Campbell, Wetaskiwin and O. Bush, Strathcona.

(Signed) O. Bush,
Pres. Federal Electoral District

$500 GRANT

At last week's council meeting, the delegation, appointed by the newly formed Agricultural Society was present and made application for a grant of $500 in aid of the organization. Secretary Ross of the Society made a strong plea with the result that the above grant was made. A sub-lease of the grounds now leased by the town for a period of twenty one years was also applied for but left over until another meeting. It is probable, however, that this will also be secured and the statement has already been made by the society that in the event of such, improvements will start before spring.

DR. WATSON SHOWS CHANGE FOR BETTER

Dr. Watson is gradually improving, although for the past week or ten days his condition has been serious. Reports as to his condition have been very conflicting, one despatch stating that he was very low and another claiming that he was doing nicely. Reliable information is being sent down now by Mrs. Watson, who is in Edmonton, and he is showing a decided change for the better.

WILL FARM AND OPERATE FOUR SECTIONS HERE NEXT SEASON

It is stated that Mr. E. Messier of St. Hyacinthe, Quebec, who owns a half section of land east of town, will manage the Quinn Syndicate, the members of which will operate four sections of land here next spring. The whole tract will be broken and seeded with mixed grains. Orders have already been placed for steam outfits with which to do the work.

The company will follow the scheme of the C. P. R. in improving their land and selling ready made farms. Many more acres will be purchased between now and the spring, when it is estimated that the syndicate will have at least ten sections. Mr. Quinn, the managing director, has great faith in the Wainwright district and will undoubtedly make extensive developments.

Dr. McCord, Veterinary Surgeon, who hails from Brockville Ont., as a well experienced man has located in town and may be seen at his office at the Red Cross Pharmacy. It is hoped that he will permanently locate here.

CHALLENGE

The Chauvin Athletic Club hereby challenge the Wainwright Athletic Association to produce a Boxer from 148 to 156 pounds for an Exhibition to be held in Chauvin. A return match is guaranteed. Date, terms and all arrangements may be made through the secretary of the Chauvin Athletic Club.

It did not take long for the councillors to start the rink after such an expression of confidence to that effect by the ratepayers. Work has already started and is now under way.

Land Here as Good as Manitoban

Mr. J. Joyale, who has been managing the interests of the Mondou syndicate for the past six months will leave shortly for Manitoba, where he will spend the winter with his family. Mr. Joyale owns a section and a half of valuable wheat land in Red River District, which this year threshed thirty-five bushels to the acre. He states that the land here is as good if not better than that in Manitoba. Mr. A. Grenier of Heath will take Mr. Joyale's position.

MUSSON & ROSS TO ENLARGE STORE

Messrs. Musson & Ross have found that their present quarters are decidedly too inadquate and will, according to plans drawn by Architect E. D. Stimpson, make an addition to their present building. The addition will be built on Second Avenue and will be thirty feet in length. The plans also provide for a full basement well under the old building.

CROPS EXCEED ALL ESTIMATES

John Brown of Greenshields, who is recognized as one of Wainwright's successful grain growers, shipped a carload of wheat to eastern points last week and received a high grade for the shipment. This is another sample of the crops panning out much better than was at first expected.

Much interest is being taken in the moving pictures that are being presented in the local Auditorium by Small Brothers, the progressive proprietors of the theatre. The pictures are exactly the same as those, shown in Winnipeg, Watrous and Edmonton, the four points being on the same circuit.

BYE-ELECTIONS IN THE SOUTH

All Four Elections in the South Went Conservative --- Small Vote in Calgary Yet Tweedie Got Large Majority.

CHANGE OF OPINION

It is self evident that Conservatism rules in Southern Alberta today and the Siftonism has lost material ground in the minds of the electors in that section of the province. Such cannot and is not denied by even the hardest headed Liberals after the successful candidature of the four Conservative representatives in Calgary, Gleichen, Lethbridge and Pincher Creek last week. To elect three of the four in the last election and to have them turned down by the popular will of the people at a by-election, the Liberals naturally feel that a change has come with the changing mind of the people. Such a feeling, however, was not entertained before the result of the polls were announced. The least they expected was that an even break would ensue, while the most sanguine of the party looked for a clean sweep.

At Calgary, where T. M. Tweedie was the conservative candidate, the majority of 1300 was a very large one, considering the fact that the vote polled was small. Harold W. Riley in Gleichen had a majority of 351, while Lethbridge was carried by Dr. Stewart by 182. In Pincher Creek, John Kimmis carried the day and defeated his opponent, Joh Boss.

The fusion party now presents a solid front of nineteen members as compared to twenty-one in the Sifton party. Twelve insurgent members have thirsted for sometime past after the blood of Arthur Sifton but with the Conservative turnover last week, it is doubtful whether the feeling will continue. Perhaps at this time, they will come to the conclusion that unless they patch up a truce, the interests of their party must be sacrificed for the good of a few. No announcements have yet been made by Premier Sifton, yet they are not unexpected at anytime.

RINK BUILDING TO BE MODERN STRUCTURE

The skating rink has been started and the large well for water supply is already completed. No time has been lost in getting the work under way in order to ensure the building for the coming winter.

Immediately after such a favourable vote last week, action was taken by Coun. Musson, the chairman of the committee under which the structure will be erected. It was considered advisable to do the work by day's labour and dispense with the usual call for tenders. The foremanship of the work was given to Charles Isteed, an experienced contractor, who claims former experience on similar structures. The plans, which have been completed by Architect Stimpson, call for a building with a circular arch throughout its entirelength of one hundred and ninety feet. The arch, although not entirely in the form of a half circle, is ninety feet in diameter at the base and is approximately thirty-seven feet in radius from the base to the spring of the arch. The hockey ice will be one hundred and fifty feet long and seventy feet wide, while the adjoining curling rinks on each side will be sixteen feet wide, continuing for the entire length. Two waiting rooms, dressing apartments and toilet rooms will make up the front part of the structure.

Irma's experience should offer as a lesson to the citizens of Wainwright in regard to disastrous fires. Although the town possess an efficient fire brigade and sufficient fire fighting apparatus, for small fires, it should be borne in mind that they might both work to no avail in a case of a large configation.

IN THE EVENT OF WAR

GEN. SIR JOHN FRENCH MIGHT COMMAND ALLIES.

Prominent British Officer Who Recently Went to Investigate French Fortifications on the Frontier and Thereby Gave Germany Great Offence Is Probably the Man Who Would Lead the Anglo-French Army.

When the war scare broke out in Europe a short time ago and there was the possibility of a contest in which Germany, France and England might become involved, the name of Gen. Sir John D. P. French was frequently mentioned as that of the possible commander-in-chief of the combined French and English armies. Gen. French is a distinguished officer and has been decorated many times for bravery. Recently he visited on the continent and inspected the French fortifications on the French frontier. This gave considerable offence to Germany and his act was regarded as a threat.

GEN. SIR JOHN D. P. FRENCH.

Mackinnon's Boys.

An interesting fact regarding Gen. Mackinnon, who has been in command of the troops at Liverpool during the strike, is that no fewer than five of his uncles and great-uncles also wore the uniform of the Grenadiers, to which the gallant general belongs. One of these ancestors was blown up at Ciudad Rodrigo, and another fell at Inkermann. Moreover, the general's wife is the daughter and sister of a Grenadier, while his daughter is married to a Grenadier. Gen. Mackinnon has been a soldier for forty-one of his fifty-nine years, and commanded the C.I.V.'s ("Mackinnon's Boys," as they were called) in South Africa.

Apropos of the C.I.V.'s in South Africa, a good story is told of Gen. French and Gen. Mackinnon. French and his staff were dining one night in a small village during the Boer War, when news came that a strong party of Boers had attempted to rush a position. French and his staff called for their horses, when another messenger reported that Mackinnon was moving against them with the C.I.V.'s. "Oh, that's all right, then!" said French, resuming his seat at the table. "If Mackinnon is on the warpath there won't be much change given. There is no need for us to ruin our dinner."

One of "Rhodes' Young Men."

It was Sir Abe Bailey, the African millionaire, sportsman, and politician, whose forthcoming marriage has aroused so much interest, who became prominent as one of "Rhodes' young men," and later on succeeded to the empire-builder's seat in the Cape Legislative Assembly. He figured in the Jameson Raid, and when Lord Hawke and his English cricketing team arrived in the Gold Reef City they found Mr. Bailey, who was to have been their host, in prison. Ultimately Mr. Bailey was released on payment of a fine of $10,000. During the South African War he distinguished himself by helping to raise and equip the South African Light Horse, which was ready to take the field in three weeks. The outfitting resources of Cape Town were not extensive, and many amusing shifts had to be resorted to. For instance, the cocks' feathers which gave so jaunty an appearance to the corps were mostly provided by the girls of the town, who gladly stripped their own headgear for popular Mr. Bailey and his men.

Lucky Lloyd-George.

When Mr. Lloyd-George first contested the Carnarvon Boroughs the fight was very keen, and at the count the votes ran neck-and-neck all through the evening. The counters had finished, and the news went round that Mr. Lloyd-George had been beaten. It was a very narrow majority—some ten votes. Mr. Lloyd-George was already receiving the usual consolations, when suddenly one of his followers saw a small packet of votes under one of the boxes. The packet was hauled out and counted, and Mr. Lloyd-George emerged with a majority of some two-score votes.

"I don't like the way they reported my speech," complained the new congressman.

"Why, they sprinkled in plenty of laughter and applause."

"Yes, but how about all them gestures?"—Washington Herald.

BALFOUR'S MEMORY.

It Frequently Plays Him a Mean Trick While Speaking.

Mr. Balfour, who has completed his sixty-third year, is frequently the victim of absent-mindedness. Once in a speech he referred to the late Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman as Sir Henry Bannerman, Sir Charles Bannerman, and Mr. Bannerman. Not very long ago he spoke of Lord Northampton as Sir Henry Fowler and Sir William Fowler. There was another entertaining instance some time back at a Primrose League demonstration at the Albert Hall. "Where do I sit?" asked Mr. Balfour, with a bland note of inquiry. A surprised official pointed to the chair. Mr. Balfour, seemingly, had totally forgotten that he was to preside over the meeting.

The right hon. gentleman was born in Scotland, eldest son of the late Mr. James Maitland Balfour, of Whittinghame, who married Lady Blanche Cecil, sister of the late Marquis of Salisbury. Educated at Eton and at Trinity College, Cambridge, Mr. Balfour entered the House of Commons in 1874 as M.P. for Hertford; from 1885 to 1906 he sat for East Manchester, and since then he has been one of the representatives of the City of London.

For a few years he acted as private secretary to his uncle at the Foreign Office, and accompanied the mission of Lord Beaconsfield and Lord Salisbury to Berlin in 1878. His administrative experience commenced in 1885 as President of the Local Government Board, and he was Chief Secretary for Ireland from 1887 to 1891, when, on the death of Mr. W. H. Smith, he became First Lord of the Treasury and Leader of the House of Commons.

On Lord Salisbury's retirement in July, 1902, Mr. Balfour succeeded him as Prime Minister, in which post he continued until the Liberals regained power, in 1906.

The right hon. gentleman is Chancellor of Edinburgh University, an Elder Brother of Trinity House, and Grand Master of the Primrose League. He has been president of the British Association, and Lord Rector of Glasgow and St. Andrew's Universities.

Mr. Balfour is a very astute man of business, and a wealthy one withal. He has investments in real estate in many unlikely places, including New Zealand. His fortune originated with his paternal grandfather, James Balfour, an Indian civil servant, who afterwards made $1,500,000 out of contracts for supplying the Indian navy with provisions.

SPOONING PROHIBITED.

Other Things Than Barking Which Are Barred on the Beach.

The new bylaw recently introduced at Eastbourne (Eng.), under which owners of dogs must not allow them to bark on the beach, is not likely to make that town popular with dog-lovers. The penalty—a fine of forty shillings—will make many holiday-makers, who are in the habit of taking their dogs with them, give Eastbourne a wide berth.

There are so many curious bylaws to be met with at the various English seaside places that the holiday-maker should make careful inquiries when visiting a new resort, if he does not wish to break the law. Ignorance of the law is no defence.

How many people know that it is illegal for a person to have in his possession an edible crab measuring less than four and a quarter inches in length? To have the crab in one's possession is an offence punishable by fine, even if one has no intention of trying to sell the shell-fish. So take a pocket-rule with you on your promenades, and carefully measure all crabs and lobsters before you take them home. Lobsters must measure eight inches from head to tail when spread flat.

The subject of mixed bathing has worried many seaside authorities, and there are different regulations in force at nearly every resort. At Margate, Yarmouth, and Scarborough, for instance, mixed bathing is allowed without any restrictions. At Morecambe Bay the sexes must be at least sixty yards apart.

Don't take a white bathing costume with you to Morecambe Bay, as the authorities have taken exception to this color, for some weird reason.

Many people imagine that anyone can bathe from the beach, but this is not the case at some resorts, where parts of the shore are private. At Broadstairs a portion of the foreshore is private property, and the bather is liable to prosecution.

The Ramsgate authorities object to hawkers and vendors, and only allow a limited number of these gentry to patrol the beach. Why this should be so nobody knows, as fruit-sellers and ice-cream vendors are very much in demand during the hot weather, and holiday-makers seldom care about walking into the town to quench their thirst.

Hawkers may hawk, and vendors may vend, at Morecambe Bay, but fortune-tellers must not tell fortunes—say those in authority. At some seaside resorts no hawkers at all are allowed. At Yarmouth the beach is mostly occupied by sellers of sea-shells, and only a few hawkers are to be found.

A curious regulation came into force at Scarborough some years ago, when the question of running trains on Sundays was raised. After a good deal of discussion, the authorities decided to run Sunday trams, but at the same time introduced a bylaw to forbid the drivers ringing their bells when passing places of worship. Cyclists should therefore refrain from sounding their bells when passing churches in Scarborough, or they may render themselves liable to prosecution.

But English bylaws, although rather quaint, have been totally eclipsed by one introduced in America some years ago. At Ashly Park, New Jersey, a popular American watering-place, spooning is strictly prohibited. Sweethearts may not patrol the promenades, and lovers may not embrace on the beach. It is also illegal for a girl to sit with her sweetheart's head on her lap—a very favorite occupation of English maidens. Imagine the consternation the introduction of such a bylaw at Southend or Clacton would bring about! Evidently English holiday-makers have still a great deal to be thankful for.—Answers.

Keep Horses In Good Flesh.

Horses can be kept the most economically in good flesh. A fat horse will eat less than a poor one. The horse with his bones covered with good hard flesh and muscle is stronger. It does not pay to keep thin, weak horses that cannot do a good day's work every day when it costs no more to keep good ones.

Stops a Deep-Seated Cough in a Hurry

A Family Supply of Unequaled Cough Remedy for 50c—Money Refunded If It Fails.

Cough medicines, as a rule, contain a large proportion of plain syrup—a good ingredient, but one that anyone can make. A pint of granulated sugar, with ½ pint of warm water, stirred for 2 minutes, gives you as good syrup as money can buy.

A 50-cent bottle of Pinex, mixed in a 16-oz. bottle with home-made sugar syrup, gives you 16 ounces of really better cough syrup than you could buy ready-mixed for $2.50. There's a clear saving of $2.00. Full directions in package.

And money couldn't buy a quicker, better remedy. Takes hold at once, gives almost instant relief, and usually stops the most obstinate, deep-seated cough in 24 hours. It stimulates the appetite, is slightly laxative and has a pleasant taste—children take it willingly. Splendid for hoarseness, asthma, chest pains, and other throat troubles, and unequaled for prompt results in whooping cough.

Pinex is a special and highly concentrated compound of imported Norway White Pine extract, and is rich in guaiacol and other natural healing pine elements. Simply mix it as directed with sugar syrup or strained honey, and it is ready for use.

Used in more homes in the U. S. and Canada than any other cough remedy.

Pinex has often been imitated, but never successfully, for nothing else will produce the same results. The genuine is guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. Certificate of guarantee is wrapped in each package. Your druggist has Pinex or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

HORSE COLIC REMEDY.

Symptoms and Treatment of This Common Ailment.

Colic makes attacks suddenly. The horse may show every symptom of distress and then get up, begin eating and seem relieved, only to be in agony again in fifteen, twenty or thirty minutes. This, with recklessness in tying down and absence of abdominal tenderness, distinguish the disease from inflammation of the bowels. The attacks may increase or decrease in severity.

To administer a laxative at once is the safest method, as this relieves spasms and carries out irritating matter. It is well to include an anodyne (belladonna, two ounces; opium, one and a half drams; aconite, thirty drops), or chloral hydrate, one-half ounce, to hold pain in abeyance until the system absorbs the laxative. A stimulant to quiet the nervous excitement may also be needed. For this give sweet spirits of niter one-half ounce or carbonate of ammonia two to four drams. Administer also copious injections of warm water with or without anodynes and antispasmodics and walk the patient about gently.

If the colic seems to be spasmodic wholly anodynes and antispasmodics may be given without the laxative once in half an hour, but if they fail give the physic aloes, four drams, at once and then only enough of the other to moderate pain until the laxative begins to be absorbed. The horse should be entirely free from the effects of the colic in three to four hours.—Farmers' Veterinary Adviser.

Why France Wants Morocco

Morocco is a white man's country once and a half times the size of France, four and a half times the size of New England, and the most productive state of North America, perhaps the most productive area of the entire African continent. A key to the Mediterranean, almost touching Europe, and a veritable market garden for that continent, contiguous to the French territory of Algeria, and but 700 miles from Marseilles, with double the population of Algeria and Tunisia combined, a rich fertile soil, abundant rainfall, well distributed rivers and a coast line of 1,300 miles—300 on the Mediterranean, 1,000 on the Atlantic—Morocco is indeed the golden orange of Barbary. — Charles Furlong in World's Work.

Handy Bit Brace

It often happens when one desires to use a bit in a corner, that a ratchet brace is not at hand, or that when a bit is required for use no brace at all is at hand. In such a case a doorknob from any convenient door may be used. The square hole in the knob will permit of its being slipped over the shank of the bit, and the bit may then be turned quite successfully by grasping the knob with the hand.

New Grain Exchange

The new Grain Exchange lately opened at Fort William will give farmers and dealers another exchange through which to sell their grain.

Fort William and Port Arthur being at the head of the Great Lakes, and being the storehouses for all grain grown west of Lake Superior, it is only natural that grain exporters think that Fort William is the logical point for a market for Western grain.

A sample market is to be established by the new exchange which should be a great boon for the farmers and dealers. The mixed crop that we have this year can be disposed of, in most cases, to much better advantage by selling on sample than on grade, and the Fort William and Port Arthur Grain Exchange is to be congratulated on taking this forward step.

The only thing now required is to induce the Government to change the Grain Act so that a sample market can be established at the Head of the Lakes. The Government should see at a glance that it would mean better prices for the producer for all grades of wheat, oats, barley and flax.

Newfoundland

In spite of ease and swiftness of communication we break down over the pronunciation of names that lie outside our front door. There is Newfoundland, our earliest speculation in American settlers. But, you can't pronounce it so as to satisfy everybody. A visitor has protested. The name has three solid syllables—one must win. In English mouths the accent is generally put on the second syllable, for the dogs found their [illegible] quite wrong. The Liver, Kidneys and Bowels Must Be Kept Active to Ensure Health

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

Not one person in a hundred can get along at this time of year without using something to enliven the action of the liver, kidneys and bowels.

Too much eating of heavy artificial foods, too little outdoor exercise, this is the explanation.

The liver and kidneys are overworked in their efforts to remove the poisonous waste matter from the system. They fail, and become torpid and clogged. The bowels become constipated and stomach derangements follow.

There is one medicine which will overcome this condition more certainly and more quickly than any other, and this is Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

This medicine gets the bowels in action at once, and by awakening the liver and kidneys ensures the thorough cleansing of the filtering and excretory systems.

With the poisonous obstructions removed, the digestive system resumes its healthful condition, appetite improves, pains and aches disappear as well as irritability and depression.

You cannot imagine a more satisfactory treatment for biliousness, constipation, backache and kidney disease than Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. One pill a dose, 25 cents a box, at all dealers or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

TEETHING TIME WORRY

Baby's teething time was once a source of worry to all mothers—it is yet a time of worry to many, though there are thousands of mothers who have learned the secret which banishes this worry. Mothers who worry, who see their little ones suffering from difficult teething; who are worn out by day and kept awake at night by the cries of the baby in distress, should follow the example of the thousands and give their little ones Baby's Own Tablets—the remedy for worry—the never failing banisher of baby's pains. Concerning them Mrs. H. Monette, jr., Rapide de l'Orignal, Que., says: "My baby cried day and night and suffered from his teeth. A few doses of Baby's Own Tablets made him healthy and happy and his teething easy and painless. I would not be without them." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Improvements at Fort William

The Canadian Pacific Railway has started work on its new operations at Fort William and Port Arthur. The work for this year will consist chiefly in the erection of a new coal-handling plant, but in connection with the other operations there is considerable dredging to be done. The Canadian Stewart Company has the contract for the building of the coal plant, and it is stated that the appropriation for the work is in the neighborhood of one million dollars. The plant, it is stated, will take care of most of the soft coal assigned to the company at the head of the lakes, and it is hoped that it will be finished in time to handle some of next year's coal business.

It is also stated that the new plant will be built in the form of a loop, and the cars which will carry the coal back from the towers will run around the loop and dump at the desired intervals. Bridging the space between the loop there will be one or two lines of track, along which other cars can be switched in order to dump sufficient coal to fill up the centre of the pit.

It Rubs Pain Away—There is no liniment so efficacious in overcoming pain as Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. The hand that rubs it in rubs the pain away, and on this account there is no preparation that stands so high in public esteem. There is no surer pain-killer procurable as thousands can attest who have used it successfully in treating many ailments.

"I guess the good old days are gone."

"How now?"

"I asked my little niece if she knew who Cinderella was. She said Cinderella was a character in a musical comedy, but that it wasn't fit for old people to see."

The little maid stood in the doorway, one hand on the handle. For a moment she gazed thoughtfully at her father, who was preparing to take his afternoon siesta.

"Papa," she said, "do you know what I'm going to give you for your birthday when it comes?"

"No, dear," answered her fond father. "But, tell me."

"A nice new china shaving mug, with gold flowers on it all around," said the little maid.

"But, my dear," explained her parent, "papa has a nice one, just like that, already."

"No, he hasn't," his little daughter answered, thoughtfully, "'cos—'cos—I've just dropped it."—Exchange.

The Canadian Rockies

Albert Groll, the noted New York landscape artist, likes the Canadian Rocky Mountains. Mr. Groll has spent several weeks in the Rockies sketching scenes along the lines of the Canadian Pacific Railway, and he is enthusiastic over the beauty of the mountains. Stopping over at Duluth on his way back to Broadway, Mr. Groll was interviewed by a paper of that city.

"It is a beautiful country," said Mr. Groll, "and there are boundless opportunities for the photographer and the artist to get into close touch with Nature. Even if the artist never leaves the lines of the C.P.R. there is plenty of magnificent scenery to satisfy even the most ardent seeker of beauty."

Mr. Groll predicted a big inroad of American tourists into the Canadian Rockies next year.

These Pills Cure Rheumatism — To the many who suffer from rheumatism a trial of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills is recommended. They have pronounced action upon the liver and kidneys and by regulating the action of these organs act as an alternative in preventing the admixture of uric acid and blood that causes this painful disorder. They must be taken according to directions and used steadily and they will speedily give evidence of their beneficial effects.

"VOX POPULI"

From the result of the four bye-elections, held last week, it is evident, if not obvious, that the electors of Southern Alberta are disatisfied with the administration that Premier Sifton and the Liberal party have been exercising in Edmonton for the past eighteen months and that a change was desired, when the opportunity presented itself. A turnover, such as took place in Gleichen, Lethbridge and Pincher Creek, could mean nothing more. It was necessary that it transpire with the changing sentiment of the people.

From the beginning of the campaign, it was conceded by even the Liberals that the government would lose at least one seat, although it was never imagined that the entire four would turn against them. Such however, proved the case, with the result that these constituencies are now represented by Conservative members. In Calgary, a very large majority was chalked up in favor of the conservative policy, although in the other ridings the majorities were small.

The A. and G. W. Railway policy of Sifton was given a severe body blow, following the realization that the question has been tangled and mixed since it was first introduced into the legislature. It is stated that the campaign, although bearing solely on this policy, was fought by the opposition from the standpoint of the recent Conservative victory in the Federal House and that every influence in this respect was used to defeat the government candidates.

Premier Sifton has, on numerous occasions, been termed as the "Sphinx", and from what he has given out in regard to his intentions, the cognomen is not far astray. The people of the province are in the position as to not know what to expect next. They have been informed of the policy of the government on this much-needed railway and from what transpired on Tuesday last the people of these constituencies do not relish it in the least. It was unpalatable to the electors and they spoke accordingly.

To pay interest at the rate of $1,000 per day on an amount of $7,000,000, which money cannot be touched or used in any way until the existing suit is settled by ligitation, carries with it the sentiment that something is materially wrong. This argument was used to great advantage by the Opposition, together with the fact that Alberta would secure her natural resources much easier by saying at the polls that such was desired. In the Federal Elections, this policy formed one of the chief planks of the Conservative platform and Alberta voted against it, although by reciprocity, the larger question of the two, the province was no doubt drawn into it, with the announcement by Sifton that Laurier would also concede to the West the control of her natural resources.

* * *

Reports have it that Hon. Frank Oliver will resign his seat in the Federal House and will enter the provincial arena, providing a portfolio is passed his way. The foundations from which such a report springs, are based on the fact that he wishes to bridge over the gap that now divides the liberal members in the house by framing up a new policy that will meet with the approval of all concerned.

RINK BY-LAWS

There is no doubt but that the majority of the citizens of Wainwright now feel that their efforts to make progress in the town are not in vain and that, although opposed to a certain extent by a few, they can still look forward to the realization of their most sanguine expectations. The town will, during the course of the next two months, have an up-to-date skating and curling rink, and an opportunity thus afforded of passing the winter months in a profitable and enjoyable pastime.

To say the least, the rate payers displayed a broadmined view of the situation and judging from the number that turned out to vote, more than the usual interest was taken in the by-law, relative to the question. In all, about one hundred and ten citizens had votes, and of this number ninety seven turned out and registered their votes at the polls.

From early morning, it was thought that much opposition was being registered against the by-laws, although as the day progressed, it was seen that they would carry by at least a fair majority. The greatest number, registered against either of the by-laws, was seventeen votes, which reflects much credit upon the spirit of optimism that prevails in the town.

* * *

Much surprise has been expressed since last week's issue of the STAR that a valuable coal deposit had been unearthed on the banks of the Battle River and at a distance of about ten miles from the town. A great interest has furthermore been displayed in the announcement that a large company had applied for a charter to work the seam, capitalized at $25,000.

* * *

Hon. Duncan Marshall has been receiving many criticisms from his old admirers since the defeat of the four Liberal candidates at the bye-elections last week. The Calgary Albertan states that he should take more strenuous steps to clear himself in face of the many charges made against him as being an election crook.

* * *

Typhoid fever has to a certain degree abated in the town, no new cases having developed during the past two weeks. Even though this is the case, the citizens should show no reluxation in their efforts to prevent the infection from breaking out again.

* * *

"Swamped in the wake of a Dominion election", is the manner in which the Albertan describes the Liberal defeat last week in Calgary, Lethbridge, Gleichen and Pincher Creek. In view of the fact that Southern Alberta voted against the Borden government on September 21st., this statement is not correct.

* * *

All indications at the present time point to the coming spring being a very active season in the history of Wainwright and its district. Farms are being purchased by intending settlers and reports state that all are experienced and wealthy farmers. From all parts of Canada and the United States come favourable impressions as a result of the great publicity the district has derived from extensive advertising.

6 YEAR OLD CHILD CURED OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

Mr. Alex. Moore of James St. Oxford, N. S. says: "Booth's Kidney Pills cured our little daughter, Christian, age six years, of many symptoms of kidney weakness. She complained of a sore back, the kidney secretions were frequent and uncontrollable, especially at night. Her stomach was weak and her appetite poor. This caused her to have frequent headaches, and the least exertion would tire her. We had tried many remedies, but she did not improve. Finally we learned of Booth's Kidney Pills and procured a box. In a short time she was well and does not now complain about her back, the kidney secretions have become normal, and she plays around the house with no apparant fatigue. We always recommend Booth's Kidney Pills."

OFFICERS AND COMMITTEEMEN OF AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY ARE LEAVING NO STONE UNTURNED

Munificent Grant to Society of $500 will be of Great Benefit --- 1912 Fall Fair.

To all, who are members of, or are in any way connected with the organization, the interest, being taken in the Wainwright Agricultural Society by the different officials, must undoubtedly be a cause for satisfaction and commendation. Despite the lateness of the present season, officers and committee men are losing no interest and are seemingly leaving no stone unturned in their determination to make the first annual fair of 1912 a decided success from every standpoint. Patronage and support is being extended from all sides ane preliminary preparations are already sufficient to ensure the success of the society. The munificent grant of $500 from the town will be of much assistance to the organization and it is well to see that the donation has been appreciated by the members and officers.

In the different offices, the society can boast of men, who will always advance the best foot forward. From what has already transpired, Secretary Ross intends, so far as it is in his power so to do, to acclaim the needs of the organization on every available and opportune occasion. He further intends that it will not suffer by his negligence.

A meeting of the whole was held on Saturday last and although the inclemency of the weather intervened and prevented many from being present, considerable important business was transacted. The chief matter under consideration was the grounds for building purposes and the available site for a half mile race track. H. V. Fieldhouse and Mayor Pawling, representing the town, were on hand and explained the nature of the present twenty-one year lease of the recreation grounds. Both advised that a sub-lease be obtained from the municipality. This was endorsed by motion and a committee appointed to meet the town council.

Every indication now points to the fact that no interest will be relinquished from now until the fall of the coming year, when Wainwright's first fair will be held.

CHAMP CLARK PUTS HIS FOOT IN IT AGAIN AND ISSUES DEFI TO TAFT

Champ Clark has performed another bombastic stunt and states that nine tenths of the American people desire the annexation of Canada. In this connection he said before a meeting at Fremont last week, —"Nine tenths of the people of the country favor the annexation of Canada and I don't care who hears me. I am willing to make this proposition: You let me run for president on a platform calling for annexation of Canada and let President Taft run against me opposing annexation, and I will carry every state in the nation."

* * *

It is possible and perhaps probable that in the next provincial election campaign, two local candidates will be in the field. It is stated that the sitting member for this constituency, Mr. A. Bramley-Moore, is not keen after the nomination, in which case a local candidate will be nominated at the convention by the Liberals.

Boil all drinking water if you wish to keep typhoid fever from your home.

WORK ON G.T.P GROWS HEAVIER WITH EACH PASSING DAY

Work on the G. T. P. is increasing with each passing day and all extra and spare crews have their time fully occupied. Few men have been compelled to lay off on account of lack of work and from all indications and reports the magnitude of the freight will not fall off. Freight transportations have been a great deal heavier than was anticipated from preliminary crop reports.

* * *

Edmonton Liberals are greatly chagrined at the result of the polls in the four provincial ridings, where bye-elections were held last week. The public will doubtless await some announcement from Premier Sifton and, from all that he has expressed to date, they will keep on expecting.

* * *

It is expected that by the end of the week, all the coal strikers in Southern Alberta will again be at work. Mutual arrangements have been made that have pleased both employees and employers.

The Gospel Bearers Have Won Lands For Britain.

It may not be generally known, but it is none the less a fact that Britain owes several of her recent acquisitions of territory to the work or influence of missionaries. We give a batch of illustrations from the latest recruiting ground, Africa.

The expansion of South Africa is largely the work of the missionaries. In Bechuanaland the northern route was for a long time kept open solely by their influence. Some of the earliest roads were known as "Missionary Roads," and many place-names preserve the memory of individuals.

Indirectly the missionaries account for the Transvaal and Orange River Provinces, our latest acquisitions. For though we had to pay $1,000,000,000 for the war of conquest, in contrast to the inexpensiveness of missionary labor, it was nevertheless to the latter that the great Boer Trek of 1836 was due, which resulted in the founding of the republics. For had not Dr. Philip been so doughty a champion of the natives, and so trusted an adviser of the Government, the Boers would never have moved out.

Of the great achievements of Livingstone it is unnecessary to speak; but we must not forget that they opened the country to successive incursions of Englishmen, and that John Mackenzie, the missionary, was one of the first to follow him. It was Mackenzie who saved the native states from extinction by the Boers, and, as Deputy Commissioner of Bechuanaland helped to found that province. It has been said that if his advice had been taken the Boer War would have been averted. And a high authority has added that if the missionaries of Christ had preceded those of Empire the whole of the nine Kaffir wars might also have been saved.

The Moffat Treaty of 1888 with the Matabeles laid the foundation of Rhodesia for Britain. Yet that treaty was the work of a missionary, the Rev. J. S. Moffat, son of the famous Dr. Moffat.

Basutoland, the Switzerland of South Africa, we owe to a French missionary, Coillard of the Zambesi. Moshesh, the able Basuto chief, governed with a Cabinet of French missionaries. After inflicting a severe defeat on Britain's forces in 1852, he wrote to their commander a letter in which he offered peace, saying, "I am ashamed of what happened yesterday. Let it be forgotten. Oh, my master, I am still your man. I am still the child of the Queen." After such a politic and Christian epistle it is not surprising to find that in due course Basutoland was received under our protection on the most favorable terms. The Basutos are said by Bryce to have made greater progress in civilization than any other Kaffir race. Their imports in 1903 were over $1,500,000.

Barotseland, also now known as Northwest Rhodesia, is due to French missionaries. Though it is as big as the German empire it did not cost Great Britain a single life. Coillard advised Lewanika, the king, to put himself under the protection of some European nation, and with great disinterestedness recommended the British. Convinced by past experience of the good judgment of the missionary, Lewanika agreed, and in consequence his country became a British Protectorate in 1890.

Northeast Rhodesia, again, we owe to Stewart of Lovedale. By his exploration of the Shire country, he supplied Lord Salisbury with the information on which he formed the British Central Africa Protectorate. By the founding of Livingstonia he did much more still to establish our authority there. And as it was we were only just in time to anticipate the great partition of the continent, and to resist the Portuguese claim to the Nyassa region as well. As Cecil Rhodes once said, "We owe all Rhodesia to you Scotch missionaries." Or as Stead more dramatically put it, "The frontier has advanced on the stepping-stones of missionary graves."

TALL REMARKS.

GRAND old junk by the River Nile,
Built in a dynasty no one knows,
What d'you think of my modern style,
With my head 'way up where the star dust blows?
You were assembled, heaven knows how,
Wet with tears and the blood of man,
But I'm a Temple of Up-to-Now,
Contract built on a union plan.

The gods of Egypt blessed your shrine
As slowly your cumbersome wall uprist,
But mightier deities smiled on mine,
For I am the home of the gods of biz.
My priests are the wizards who span the zones,
Drivers of dragons across the seas.
What could your priesthood do, Old Bones,
But mumble prayers on their poor, weak knees?

As an office building you're useless quite,
You have size, perhaps, and an air of wealth,
But your window space is so short on light
That you ought to be closed by the board of health.
I've ventilation and light to burn
And a vacuum plant for cleaning too.
Say, the dust would fly if they'd ever turn
A vacuum cleaning plant on you!

You stand in pomp by the sacred sand
Where the jackals lurk and the mummies sleep.
You like your location? It ain't so grand.
Pooh! Building lots on the Nile are cheap!
You're far from the subway and surface car,
By the Stock Exchange you were never put.
Why, the land I'm built on is up to par—
Ten thousand dollars for each front foot.

So back to the scarabs, you hoary wreck,
Poor old has-been of other times,
Sight for the tourist rubberneck,
While the Arab courier grafts for dimes!
Dream, if you must, of your past renown,
But don't get chesty. What's that you say—
You'll still be standing when I'm torn down?
Well, of all the Egyptian nerve! Good day!

SANCTUARIES IN ENGLAND.

The Refuges of Malefactors Were Well Patronized at One Time.

Dr. Cox in his book "Sanctuaries and Sanctuary Seekers in Mediæval England," prints a hitherto unpublished list of fugitives in Westminster, bearing date June 25, 1532. It contains fifty names. As many as eighteen of this number had sought protection for debt. Eleven were accused of murder or manslaughter, and sixteen of felony; one, whose crime was "roberye comytted upon the sea," looks like a pirate. One of the fugitives from justice had been there for almost twenty years. No one of distinction appears among them; all were vulgar criminals who by ingenuity or good luck thus contrived to escape or postpone punishment. Clearly the raison d'etre of the place had ceased to be.

The last fugitive of note seems to have been John Skelton; he had libelled Wolsey, and escaping arrest from the cardinal's officers took sanctuary, where he was "well received" by the abbott, to whom Wolsey was naturally a persona ingratis. There was a curious attempt to retain the institution by the legislation of 1540, when, in obvious imitation of the Hebrew cities of refuge, eight towns were declared to be sanctuaries, but with well defined limitations, no place was to receive more than twenty men.

The towns selected did not like the honor. Manchester succeeded in transferring the privilege to Chester, and Chester again to Stafford. Early in the eighteenth century the whole system ceased to be. London possessed another sanctuary in St. Martin' de Grand. It seems to have been a disorderly place; it had no strong controlling force such as existed at Westminster. Of provincial sanctuaries, the most famous were at Durham and Beverley.

Someone Had Blundered.

Artists are not pleased with the new issue of stamps. They say that the King's head is a poor likeness, that a profile would have been preferable to the three-quarter face, and that the die, with its multitude of fine lines, is not adapted for the rapid printing and gives a smudgy impression.

The famous two-penny Blue Mauritius, for one specimen of which our present King paid £1,450, is an error stamp. The proper working, "Post Paid, Mauritius," had somehow been altered to "Post Office, Mauritius."

The penny Cape of Good Hope, which fetched £200 recently, is worth that sum because, instead of being red, as it should be, its color is blue.

Speaking of the color of stamps, the British Postoffice once made a queer mistake. About ten years ago some green halfpennies were issued which, when touched by any faintly acid solution, would quickly turn blue.

Sometimes, but not very often, one discovers a blunder in a postmark. A letter posted at Stoke-under-Ham on December 12th, 1907, and received on the 13th, was found to bear the postmark date December 21st. The figures in an office stamp are altered by unscrewing the back before each fresh stamping. In this case, the figure "2" must have been accidentally dropped in before the "1."

By such mistakes time is sometimes annihilated. A postcard from Penarth, received one evening at five o'clock at Crouch End, according to its postmark, had not been handed in till nine o'clock the same evening. Apparently, therefore, it had taken four hours less than no time to reach its destination.

Gave Him the Best.

An audacious hoax was perpetrated lately in the little County Meath village of Dunshaughlin by a young, stylishly-dressed man from Dublin who for a number of hours completely hoodwinked several prominent local people by passing himself off as "the Right Hon. Surgeon Moore," and also as "Lord Clifford." He appeared on the scene as a surgeon whose motor car had broken down, although as a matter of fact he had journeyed to the village on an old bicycle. He proceeded to the residence of Lord Dunsany and there boldly announced himself as "Lord Clifford." The Dunsany Castle servants did everything they could to make him comfortable, and he actually succeeded in obtaining a loan of several pounds which he said he needed to tide him over till his return to Dublin. Finally Lord Dunsany's chauffeur drove him back to Dublin in a motor car. At the Phoenix Park gate, he alighted, and said he was going to the Kildare Street Club. Nothing has been heard of the stranger since and the police are now looking for the bogus peer.

A Stowaway Cat.

Merriment was caused the other day at one of the Greenock (Eng.) quays by a stowaway cat. Several bags of tallow which had been landed from a coasting steamer, were lying about the wharf, and one of these was observed to move in a decidedly uncanny way. One of the laborers made a slight opening in the middle of the bag with his knife. Quickly through the hole thus formed appeared a very greasy paw, which set to work in such businesslike fashion that in a few seconds the gap was sufficiently wide to permit the egress of a cat. Puss, apparently, had been dining "in the interior" when the bag was closed. Much against her will, therefore, she had made the trip as a stowaway. The cat has been adopted as a pet by the workers at the quayside.

The Cat Came Back.

A story of a cat's love for its old home comes to hand. A family recently went from Abergele to Boothstown, near Manchester, England, to reside, and took with them their cat. It remained at its new home for ten days and then disappeared. Its disappearance was attributed to being shot by neighboring gamekeepers. Nothing more was heard of it until Mr. Smith, the owner, received a letter from his former neighbor at Abergele stating that the cat was back at its old home. To accomplish the journey the animal had to cross the Manchester Ship Canal, and it is a legitimate assumption that it would go miles out of its way during its long pilgrimage.

CANADA'S FUR ANIMALS.

The Beaver Is Again Coming to the Fore Commercially.

Perhaps no asset of the Dominion of Canada has been of late years so underestimated as our fish and game. While it is true that during the eighteenth and early part of the nineteenth century beaver were the principal product of this country, so much so that their skins were accepted as currency throughout the western part of Canada and the United States, and were the standard for barter with the Indians, how few stop to consider what this meant to our country in its days of infancy before our pine timber became of value. We are apt to look at this industry as a thing of the past. This is, however, far from being the case. It would surprise most people were they to follow back the handsome fur wraps they wear through all the different stages down to the man who mined the iron for the trap with which they were caught, and see just how much employment and capital the fur industry represents.

True, our fur-bearing animals are not as plentiful as they were, especially the beaver, yet with reasonable protection there is no reason why the beaver as well as all other animals should not fill up our waste lands in the Dominion and again become a very important asset. There is a great territory in the heart of Ontario that is not fit for agriculture, from which the pine timber has been either cut or destroyed by fire, that is now only fit to be added to our present game preserve and become a home for millions of dollars' worth of game.

The greater portion of the beaver skins taken in the past two hundred years on the American continent have been handled at the London auction sales. The first of these was held on January 24, 1672, and was considered an event of great importance, being held by the Hudson Bay Co. From that date on to the year 1902 it is estimated that 30,000,000 skins were handled at a valuation of $100,000,000. The average annual sale at present is perhaps 50,000 skins. In addition to this number, some 15,000 to 20,000 skins are handled at Leipsig and at private sales in Canada and the United States.

Our Government realizing the importance of these assets have in late years set apart several large game preserves, principally to provide breeding grounds and protection for them, where unmolested they might increase and spread out over the rest of the country. Of these the Algonquin National Park is the largest and is situated in the district of Nipissing. It was set apart in the year 1893 and has been added to from time to time until it now covers an area of nearly two million acres.

In 1893 the beaver had almost become extinct. To-day every lake, of which there are some 1,200, is full of beaver while the several rivers that take their rise in the park as well as the thousands of creeks and ponds, also abound with this wonderful animal, so much so that the Minister last year decided some could be taken annually without detriment to the park or the surrounding country, which is also filling up very rapidly. Last year some four hundred beaver, and a few otter, mink and muskrats were taken and sold in Toronto, bringing a good price. This year more will be offered for sale. Otter, mink, marten, fisher, muskrats and all other game are to-day very numerous and the annual increase is very great. The Government has in this vast territory twenty rangers and a superintendent whose duty is to patrol the park during the hunting season and trapping season to see that no illegal hunting or trapping goes on. This work has been carried on very successfully. It is true, however, that there are some cases that escape them, which is only to be expected, over such an extent of country. At other times they cut out portages, build shelter houses, clear out streams, make improvements at headquarters, etc. They are at all times fire rangers, their work in this capacity having protected the great preserve from serious fire in many years. The lakes and streams of the park also furnish the great inducement to the angler, trout and small mouthed bass abounding, and a great number visit it annually for this sport.

Our greatest pest is the wolf and nothing too mean can be said about him.

CANADIANS IN INDIA.

Four of Them Are Engaged In Missionary Work In Allahabad.

The Allahabad Christian College is maintained by the American Presbyterian Mission in India, but there are four Canadians on the staff. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Slater, recent graduates of Guelph Agricultural College and Macdonald Institute, are the latest arrivals, having reached India in November. L. H. Werden of Mimico, a graduate of McMaster University in 1907, and Stanley A. Hunter, son of Rev. W. A. Hunter, formerly pastor of the Erskine Presbyterian Church, Toronto, are two of the unmarried men on the faculty, and they live with the Christian students of the college.

Stanley A. Hunter graduated in 1910. His father is at present pastor of the Presbyterian church at Riverside, California. D. A. McGregor, who received his B.A. and M.A. degrees from McMaster, teaches one of the daily Bible classes and helps in the college. He is also Secretary of the Allahabad Y.M.C.A., and has been successful recently in increasing the funds for a splendid new building. A baby boy was born to him Sunday, March 26.

Prof. Slater is conducting some experiments in agriculture that are attracting much notice. He taught for a year at Guelph, and went to India to organize the agricultural department of the college. Two hundred acres of land have been acquired near the junction of the Jumma and Ganges Rivers, and just across the river from the college, and it is planned to teach the students of India how to grow crops scientifically. All told, there are 1,400 students studying daily in the college and high school of the mission, and a good attendance is expected when the agricultural branch opens.

HE IS A WALKING AD.

E. S. ROWE IS OFFICIAL BOOMSTER FOR VANCOUVER.

Whitby Man Who Is Teacher, Preacher, Lecturer, Investigator and General Informant, Is Working Hard In Behalf of the West and Always Makes It a Point to Be Bigger Than His Job.

"To use words commensurate with the object to be described, Elliott S. Rowe is publicity peripatetic, or The Ambulating Ad., says Frederick C. Mears in a breezy article in Saturday Night describing Vancouver's publicity commissioner. He belongs to that happy and puissant band of men who know how to do things well. He knows how to advertise things, and as he advertises things, he advertises himself.

Advertising in Canada passed the "game" stage about ten years ago, and it now parades as a full-fledged science. It is psychology practically applied. When Prof. William James lectured on the science of the mind at Harvard, there were no dispiriting fluctuations in Wall Street or the Canadian Rockies. Up to a decade ago psychology had not been introduced to business, and they were far from being on speaking terms. But not so long since introduction, engagement and marriage followed in quick succession, and now psychology and business are achieving wonderful feats in double harness. Business wanted to know how to make people believe they wanted something they had not, and that it could satisfy them. Psychology stepped up with confidence and said: "I will show you how and why."

The unquenchable Rowe was one of the advanced pupils in this particular class who held up their hands and said: "Please, teacher, I know." Elliott S. Rowe has transformed psychology into a meal ticket, which, in these days of a depressed bird seed market, is a large accomplishment.

ELLIOT S. ROWE.

His particular brand of psychology has been remunerative both to him and to the victims who see to it that Rowe does not get his meal ticket for nil.

The Ambulating Ad. always uses the tripod in his concerts, not to sing into, but as a means of understanding. The three legs of his tripod are Vancouver, Victoria and New Westminster, all in a big and high class by themselves, but the greatest of these is Vancouver. This broad-visioned man says: "Cultivate British Columbia, populate it, and then you will enrich it. Enrich the province and you must at the same time enrich the coast cities." Our subject has charge of advertising the Occidental Cosmopolis of Vancouver.

Rowe took a place in this mundane arena fifty-one years ago in the town of Whitby, an hour's ride east of Toronto. He acquainted himself with the rudiments of book-learnin' in that town—became proficient in Latin elocution there. He was enrolled at the Normal School, Toronto, and Pickering College. He then became inspired with the pioneer notion of purging this blighted colony from the stigma of illiteracy and gave the children in the woods periodic lessons in psychological marksmanship. But Rowe then treated the teaching profession as so many have since done. It was a stepping-stone for him, and it must have suffered a marked depression when he placed his departing foot upon it.

He stepped up into the Methodist ministry. He remained there from 1885 to 1907.

In 1093 Rowe was an appointee of the Dominion Government to prescribe for the malady induced by the coal strike in British Columbia. Here's a secret—Rowe told the writer he found a lot of interesting things there, including some astonishing facts, and he is going to write a book some day for the edification of the unions, the strike leaders and some clerks in the Immigration Bureau at Ottawa. He says it will be a sizzler. During the last ten years he has been seeing things in British Columbia, many of them previously unseen, because other folks were only blinking when the Ad. had both lamps trimmed and burning brightly.

Elliott S. Rowe is a quinary agglomeration; he is teacher, preacher, lecturer, investigator and informant. They do say that he lectures on social and economic subjects, and he is now in charge of civic publicity in Vancouver. He is always bigger than his job, and that is why financiers and organizers seek his advice and are pleased to get it. He measures progress by the meter of liberty. Men are civilized in so far as they are free. He believes in the future and in providing for it. He is always preaching the same little (but always powerful) sermon. Reforestation in the factory, in the bank, in the store, in the school, on the sea, on the farm and in the mine, as well as in the forest, is the only policy of progress that can guarantee enduring prosperity to the Canadian people.

One of Sterne's.

"God tempers the wind to the shorn lamb" is not a Scriptural quotation. The sentence is taken from "The Sentimental Journey," by the Rev. Laurence Sterne.

An Author's Slip.

Rider Haggard committed a queer blunder in "Jess." A simple matter of arithmetic upon the data supplied by the novel itself shows that a character therein had grown up and become the father of two children before he was in his teens.

REAL SECRET OF FLIGHT.

Aeroplanes May Have to Be Fitted With Movable Wings.

Two German physicists, doing some experimenting for the Smithsonian institution, tell us that we are as yet off the line of the real secret of flight, says the Century Path. Fixed wings are a provisional makeshift and must, one would say, inevitably involve the death of every aviator who trusts himself to them for a sufficient number of flights. He must some time come to a place in the air where an upward and downward current are passing each other. If, as is sometimes certain, he has one wing in one of these and the other in the other his death is assured.

There must be a positive lifting power in the wings if safety is to be secured in this kind of flight. The wings must beat like those of an insect or a bird—the former, Drs. von Lendenfeld and Ritter say. And, we should say, there must be an automatically acting arrangement by which either wing can when necessary deliver a more powerful stroke or more rapid strokes than the other.

They studied the blowfly in particular, finding its wings to be a double membrane between whose layers is a supporting system of hollow tubes radiating from the joint and connected with cross pieces. The movement is directly downward and toward the end of the stroke a little forward. The upcome, which is slower, is a little backward, making the front half of the lower loop of a figure 8 and then the hinder half of the upper loop. In this the wing becomes a little vertical so as to oppose its back to an air current on which the insect is flying.

BROKEN RAILS.

Many Causes For These Promoters of Railroad Wrecks.

Among all the causes of railroad accidents in the United States none is mentioned with greater frequency than the broken rail.

Many causes are assigned, and, doubtless, many are contributory. An excess of phosphorus not easily eliminated by the Bessemer process by which nearly all American rails are made has been most commonly blamed; but some of the best mechanical engineers now regard this cause as unimportant. Improper shape and a lack of pressure in rolling modern heavy rails proportionate to that which was available for the lighter rails of the past are more important faults. An excess of carbon is another.

Faults of shape usually consist in undue thinness of the web or shank of the rail and thinness of the base. The disproportion between these parts and the head of the rail tends to a lack of uniformity in texture after cooling.

Most important of all causes of broken rails is the strain imposed by the great weight and high speed of modern trains. Mechanical engineers believe that with the present style of rail the limit of safety is reached at an axle load of 45,000 pounds, yet many trains considerably exceed that figure.

Two or three years ago steps were taken by various associations to have adopted specifications for a standard rail heavier in the web and the base than those in use; and these specifications were approved by leading engineers.—Harper's Weekly.

English in Austria's Army.

A letter from Budapest in a Vienna paper says that "another language has been added to the many already in use in the Austrian army. This one, however, is one which the man in search of linguistic data would not look for—English." He writes further that the rank and file of the Sixty-sixth regiment of infantry, stationed at Karschau, have voted in favor of English as the language to be employed in the regimental schools. The reason for this is found in the fact that the regiment is made up of recruits from the Karschau district. From there men and women in great numbers went to America. Many of them and their descendants returned to the old home, bringing the English language with them. Consequently the children employ English as much as they do their native tongue.

A Savings Bank Library.

The following scheme is about to be set on foot in Brussels for the diffusion of enlightening literature. A central library consisting at the outset of 10,000 choice volumes is to be created there, and any inhabitant of any part of Belgium owning a savings bank book will be entitled to borrow from it and receive by post any book for a period of a fortnight on checking a penny off his savings bank book at the postoffice, his money at the bank serving as a guarantee for payment for books not returned. As there are about 1,500 postoffices in Belgium, this will amount to the creation of a circulating library with 1,500 branches, whose risks will be more than covered by the deposits in the savings banks.—London Standard.

Noble German Actors.

Who shall say that the stage still suffers under a social disadvantage when we learn that fifty German noblemen are now appearing as actors and that six members of reigning families have taken their wives from behind the footlights? Among the aristocratic players are Baron Emil von Kleydorff, Baron von Wagenheim, Count von Lerchenthal and a son of Prince Sayn-Wittgenstein. It is not necessity but histrionic ambition that governs these people. Presumably they can act, and at least some of them can act well and are popular favorites.—Argonaut.

IN ROTORUA, NEW ZEALAND.

Some Things Which Interested a Visitor Staying There.

"Rotorua, New Zealand, is a curious part of the world," says a woman who recently returned from an interesting stay in that place. "You may be leaning on your umbrella and will suddenly notice steam coming from the ground where you made the hole. The ground is just like chalk and you feel the heat coming up. I saw places where hot and cold springs existed side by side, the native using one spring for cooking their food and the other for preserving raw materials.

"The hotels in New Zealand are rather primitive. In one, for instance, there was only one bath tub, and in the mornings men and women would stand in line before the door, clad in their bathrobes, waiting for their turn at the tub. That was rather embarrassing, but the natives did not seem to mind it.

"They have a way of rapping on your door at 6 o'clock in the morning and asking if you would not like a cup of tea. Tea seems to be drunk to a larger extent than it is even in England, for New Zealand is a temperance country and on the corners where you would expect to see a barroom there is a tea parlor, and I was told that the men drink the beverage as they would whisky in England.

"One of the most desirable souvenirs you can get down there is a little kit basket made of fine hemp, covered with peewee feathers, which are made by the Maori women. Having seen one I was anxious to carry one home, but was unable to find one at any shop until the day before I was to leave I saw one in a general store. I asked the price.

"'That is not for sale,' replied the merchant, a white man. He added that it had been made especially for the South Kensington Museum in London. 'My wife has been making several to order,' he said. Well, I pleaded and pleaded, and finally he saw I was in earnest. But he said it was impossible to have one made. I kept on insisting and then he asked me when I was going away. I told him the next day at 11 o'clock.

"'My wife makes the baskets, but she is very lazy. I don't like to ask her to make one now, but I'll see what I can do.' He retired into a back room and there I saw him talking with a Maori woman. He made an emphatic gesture and then he shut the door and locked it with a bronze key a foot long.

"'I'll promise you shall have your kit to-morrow before you sail, madam,' he said. I got it, for the merchant had locked his wife in the room and told her she should have nothing to eat or drink until she had finished a basket for me."

The Kudos of Kingship.

Some elementary school children, about ten years of age, were recently asked to write an essay on "George V., King of England." The observations on His Majesty's daily life were rather sensational. One little boy tells us that His Majesty spends the intervals between his meals walking up and down his garden path; that he makes his laws up out of his head, and that he has liver and bacon for breakfast.

"I think he has veal and ham and thick gravie, which is trimed with parsly, and is on a silver dish," says another youthful essayist. "After that he has apple-pie, strawberrys and cream, and then forty winks before he gose to the theater." But perhaps the best piece of humor is furnished by the laddie who tells us that the King rides about in a golden carriage, sleeps in a golden bed, wears a crown on his head on Sundays, and gets wages every day which come to $30,000 every week.

It will be news to the Court that "sumtimes the King passes his time away sitting on his throne reading"; and it is edifying to learn from another juvenile historian that "he has some children who do not go to Sunday school, so he spends his time singing hymns with them in the afternoon."

Too Much For Thackeray.

A lady, an intimate friend and a frequent visitor at the Thackeray home, called late one afternoon. She was shown into the study, and on entering perceived the novelist himself seated at his desk, his head bowed upon his arms. Fearing she was intruding in the presence of some great and unknown grief, she paused, hesitating. Then, thinking she might be of some help, or at least express her sympathy, she stepped forward. Just then Thackeray looked up. His shoulders were shaking; the tears streaming from his eyes.

"Little Nell is dead," he said brokenly.

"Little Nell?" his visitor interrogated.

"Yes, Little Nell," was the answer; "she is dead—I've just been reading it." Before him, on his desk, lay an open copy of Old Curiosity Shop.

THE ANTISEPTIC BABY.

We can sterilize his bottle, we can boil his little mug,
We can bake his flannel bandages and disinfect the rug
That envelops him when he partakes of medicated air,
But there's one impossibility that leaves us in despair—
And a not unjustifiable alarm, you'll most certainly allow—
To wit, we fear 'twould never do to sterilize the cow.

Thus, although we strive to conquer every septic circumstance,
Yet we greatly fear a ghastly ailment or mischance;
For albeit we bake and boil his things and scrub and soak and souse—
As if in his anatomy forever cleaning house—
The recklessness with which he sucks his vagrant, tiny thumb
Imperils much his precious antiseptic little tum.

We are careful of his hours, we are thoughtful of his toys;
We are mindful of his sorrows and judicious of his joys;
We are prayerfully considerate of needful discipline,
Of my little "Mothers' Handbook" and the precepts writ therein,
And we strive to render sterile all designed for mouth or tum,
But one frightful danger menaces—we cannot boil his thumb.

AIR BUBBLE POWER.

Northern Ontario Mine Has a Remarkable System.

Place in a mining camp a modern department store completely equipped with telephone service and automobile delivery and selling hydraulic energy over the counter in hundred pound packages, and the city bred man may get a fair idea of what a power plant means to an industrial community 1,000 miles from its coal supply. Up in Northern Ontario such power as this is more of a miracle than a brick flat with steam heat and porcelain tubs, for the miner can exist without a bath, but he can't uncover pay rock without power to drive the drills that do it.

When the price of coal in Northern Ontario began to eat into the ore profits the miners harnessed the Montreal river for power.

Ragged Chutes, the point where the miners located their plant, is a natural water power in itself. It is ten miles from Cobalt. Here the river for about 1,000 yards whirls down a thirty-five foot grade and for four seasons in the year is a boiling, tossing torrent.

The theory as practiced was to drop this surging tide down a 300 foot shaft near the top of the rapids, then to catch the air bubbles as they rose from the water, racing through a subterranean chamber toward a tail shaft leading up again to the bed of the river 1,000 feet downstream.

Building this power plant was about one hundred times more of a proposition than its originators foresaw. First the low masonry dam was completed, 660 feet across the river, the waterways thus erected having a capacity of 1,200 cubic feet per second. Immediately above the dam, in the centre of a large concrete basin, two eight-foot steel shafts, each containing sixty-six pipes fourteen inches in diameter, were sunk to a depth of 350 feet. A thousand feet downstream the other shaft was sunk into the rocky bed, and then in three shifts, and working day and night, the miners chopped a subterranean chamber connecting the two shafts at the upper end of the rapids with the single one at the lower. They cut this great underground raceway twenty-two feet wide along its entire length, twenty-six and a half feet high at the bottom of the shafts and forty-two feet high in the central part of the tunnel. The whole undertaking was hazardous to an extreme, but neither officers nor men will admit it. It was all in the day's work with them. Moreover, the camp at Cobalt had begun to taunt them, and they were going to finish the job or "bust."

Across the ridges above the hole where the rapids roared gangs of timber jacks in the meanwhile chopped a path straight through the shrub toward Cobalt. Swamps, where men sunk to their armpits, were filled in with rock and timber, and before work on the power plant was completed they had laid seven miles of corduroy road for the big steel pipe line—this twenty inch lap welded pipe line of German steel, which was to carry the air eventually and was laid in sections as it arrived, the various loops and feeders ranging from twelve to three inches in diameter.

Canada's Capital.

In the old days before the several Canadian provinces entered upon the present confederation the Parliament met alternately at Montreal and Quebec, and the officials of the Government selected their own place of residence. The rivalry between those cities was so acute that neither could be chosen for the capital, and in 1857 both joined in an address, which was ratified by Parliament, asking Queen Victoria to settle the dispute.

During the following year she named Ottawa, then a lively little lumber camp of 5,000 or 6,000 people, occupying an exceedingly favorable geographical location.

Big Firewater Chief.

One of the most interesting figures in the employ of the Dominion Government is Chief Watson of Riversville, Quebec, chief of the tribe of Abenakis Indians.

Chief Watson is employed by the Provincial Government in regulating the liquor traffic among the Indians, and had some exciting times following his vocation, as an Indian under the influence of firewater is about as hard to handle as a hungry hyena.

Lawyers In Majority.

It has been figured out that the next Parliament will contain: 76 lawyers, 36 farmers, 32 merchants, 21 doctors, 17 manufacturers, 10 lumbermen, 8 journalists, 7 notaries public, 2 canners, 1 pharmacist, 1 stock broker, 1 professional labor leader, 1 licensed victualer, 1 cattle dealer.

An Accidental Hit.

On the second day of the recent Toronto Exhibition, one of the men interested in the pageant before the grandstand, sought out a friend to get his opinion of it. The friend went into raptures over the realism of the coronation procession.

"What did you most admire?" he was asked.

"I liked the detail," replied the friend. "They paid such attention to such fine realistic points as that officer who fell off his horse right in front of the grandstand. That caught my eye."

"Yes," said the Exhibition man rather dubiously, "but that was not intentional."

REPORT OF G.T.P. CONCILIATION BOARD FAVOURS THE STRIKING MACHINISTS AND BOILER-MAKERS

Winnipeg, Man.
Oct. 25th., 1911.

Hon. T. W Crothers,
Minister of Labor,
Ottawa, Ont.

Sir:—In the matter of the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act 1907, and in the matter of the disputes between the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway and the Machinists and Boilermakers in its employ.

The Board of Concilliation to whom the above disputes were referred, beg to report as follows:—

A very long delay occured between the time of the application for the appointment of the Board and the date when the work of investigation actually commenced, two months and a half.

Throughout these long delays the employees have shown a conciliatory and forbearing spirit, but apparently convinced that they would not be able to obtain an investigation; they decided to prepare for a strike. On October 4th. the employees delivered an ultimatum to the Company, asking for their right to a Schedule Agreement and a minimum wage, intimating that refusal meant a strike, and asking for an answer by noon on the 10th. On the morning of the 6th there occured what the employees claimed was a lock-out. The shops at Rivers and Edmonton, the two most important shops of the system, were closed. The Company claims that there was no lock-out, but that the shops were simply closed for repairs. No answer was given to the employees' ultimatum, and on the 10th instant a strike commenced.

On the 12th instant the Rev. J. L Gordon was appointed the third member, and the real work of the Board at once commenced. The Rev. J. L. Gorden personally attended upon officials of the Company with a view to ensuring their co-operation in the work of investigation and conciliation, but while they acknowledged him as the Company's representative, they failed to give him any assistance.

The investigation showed that the more important requests of the men are as follows:

1. A Schedule Agreement.
2. A minimum rate of wage.
3. Committee representation on grievances.
4. Nine hour day.
5. Definition of trades.

Generally speaking, the men asked for conditions similar to those in existance on other roads in the same territory.

The investigation extended over a period of 5 days. The enquiry assumed a wide scope and information was gained from every available source. The investigation was extended so as to include in a general manner the C. P. R. and C. N. R. as well as the G. T. P., and in a general way all other Canadian roads and many American roads. The board had before it in detail the official answers given by the Company to the requests of the men, and the written arguments advanced by the Company to show why such requests should not be granted. These answers and arguments were most carefully investigated and considered, and independent advice regarding them obtained from experts summoned before the Board.

As a result of its inquiries the findings of the Board are as follows:—

The number of employees involved in the dispute is approximately 300. Their requests are of vital importance; they have been conceded by nearly all the railroads in Canada and the United States. Similar conditions were granted by the Canadian Northern Railway and Canadian Pacific Railway nearly 10 years ago, and have ever since been conceded. They were allowed by the C. N. R. when that road's staff of mechanics was much smaller than is the present staff of the G. T. P.

The Board can see no sufficient reason why G. T. P. should be exempt from the necessity of granting to the employees an agreement and rates of pay such as are recognized as fair and reasonable by so many other roads.

The Company, in its official reply to the requests of the men, has used as its chief objection the argument that the conditions asked for are impracticable and would tend to produce friction. This objection is not sustained by the information laid before the Board. On the contrary the Board considers, after a most thorough investigation, that the very opposite result would be achieved.

A mininum rate of pay is asked for. This is the system in operation on most railroads including the Canadian Pacific and the Canadian Northern.

A difference was found in the statements before the Board as to the rate of wages actually being paid on the Grand Trunk Pacific. The Company stated that it was prepared to pay and was actually paying as high wages as the Canadian Pacific Railway. The employees on the other hand stated that such was not the case, that about 25% of their number were in receipt of wages slightly less than the C. P. R. minimum wage, and that the remainder were receiving wages decidedly lower. By a careful investigation of the pay sheets produced by the Company before the Board it was found that the statements of the men were fully sustained and corroborated. The minimum wage asked by the employees is as low as the lowest minimum wage now paid west of the Lakes, and lower than some others now paid in the same territory.

Committee representation is also asked for. In practice it is found to be a most satisfactory method of adjusting differences both important and unimportant which continually arise between employer and employee. The Company claims no grievance existed. Undoubtedly grievances have existed, but perhaps they have not been presented through lack of facilities or through fear of results to the individual.

The employees asked for a nine hour day. The present working day on the Grand Trunk Pacific is ten hours, although on other roads in the same territory it is only nine hour. Also a nine hour day is in operation on that portion of the Grand Trunk Pacific that is under Government control. Satisfactory information, however, was received showing that a reasonable shortening of the working day usually results in increased efficiency and improved social, domestic and intellectual conditions.

A definition of trades is asked for. This is something also acceded to by most railroads.

The Board is of the opinion that the employees fully complied with the letter and spirit of the Industrial Disputes Act, before declaring a strike, without attempting to make a finding as to whether or not there was actually a lock-out in existence prior to the strike, the Board is satisfied that the employees were convinced as to the existance of a lock-out for some days before the strike was declared.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

The Golden Opportunity

Among the persons who have recently made provision for old age when it comes are two sisters, aged respectively 33 and 34 years. They have purchased from the Canadian Government a Last Survivor Annuity, that is an Annuity which will give them together an income of $600 a year so long as they both live, and to be continued to the survivor so long as she lives. The cost of this Annuity, $3,645.65, had been invested at five per cent. and had brought in less than $186.00 annually, with the difficulty and annoyance of reinvestment. The Annuity becomes payable when the younger sister attains the age of 55, and should both die before that time the purchase money will be refunded to their heirs with three per cent. compound interest. Each is now earning her own living, and the sum paid is the fruit of their labor for a number of years. They were thus able the better to appreciate their splendid opportunity. A card of enquiry addressed to the Superintendent of Canadian Government Annuities, Ottawa, will secure for you any information you desire on the subject.

The transition from winter's cold to summer's heat frequently puts a strain upon the system that produces internal complications, always painful and often serious. A common form of disorder is dysentery, to which many are prone in the spring and summer. The very best medicine to use in subduing this painful ailment is Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial. It is a standard remedy, sold everywhere.

The Best Treatment for Itching Scalps and Falling Hair

To allay itching and irritation of the scalp, prevent dry, thin and falling hair, remove crusts, scales and dandruff, and promote the growth and beauty of the hair, the following special treatment is most effective, agreeable and economical. On retiring, comb the hair out straight all around, then begin at the side and make a parting, gently rubbing Cuticura ointment into the parting with a bit of soft flannel held over the end of the finger. Anoint additional partings about half an inch apart until the whole scalp has been treated, the purpose being to get the Cuticura ointment on the scalp skin rather than on the hair. It is well to place a light covering over the hair to protect the pillow from possible stain. The next morning, shampoo with Cuticura soap and hot water. Shampoos alone may be used as often as agreeable, but once or twice a month is generally sufficient for this special treatment for women's hair. Notwithstanding Cuticura soap and ointment are sold everywhere, those wishing to try this treatment may do so without expense by sending to "Cuticura," Dept. 4M, Boston, U. S. A., for a free sample of Cuticura soap and ointment, with 32-p. book on skin and hair.

"I trust you slept comfortably, and had everything you needed," said Sandy Macpherson's hostess one cold morning last winter.

"Ay, weel enough," replied her guest, a venerable Scot, "but I dinna see the guid o' yon bottle in the bed."

"Why, wasn't the water hot?" the hostess asked in surprise.

"Verra hot," responded Macpherson, "but ye forgot to pit onything in it."

ST. VITUS DANCE

Cured Through the Use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

Chorea, or as it is more generally known, St. Vitus dance, is a disease that usually attacks the young children, though older persons may be afflicted with it. Its most common symptoms are a twitching of the muscles of the face and limbs. As the disease progresses this twitching takes the form of spasms in which the jerking motion may be confined to the head, or all the limbs may be affected. The patient is frequently unable to hold anything in the hands or to walk steadily, and in severe cases even the speech is affected. The disease is due to debility of the nerves, and is always cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which enrich the blood, tone and strengthen the nerves, and thus restore the sufferer to good health. The following is a striking instance of what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will do in this trouble. Mrs. Chas. Phipps, Pelee Island, Ont., says: "At the age of fourteen my eldest daughter, Edith, became much run down, and the trouble developed into St. Vitus dance. First her left arm became affected, then the left leg and entire left side. She grew so bad that she actually could not hold anything in her hand, and could only go about with a sliding, jerking motion. Notwithstanding that we were giving her medicine, she seemed to be growing worse, and finally her speech became much affected. We became so much alarmed about her that finally her father got a supply of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and we began giving her these. In the course of a few weeks she was much better, and before all the pills were gone she was again enjoying perfect health. This was in 1908, and as she has not had a symptom of the trouble since, I feel justified in saying the cure is permanent."

Be sure you get the genuine pills, which are sold by all medicine dealers, or may be had at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Mistaken Idea

"Why, I always supposed old Tyte Physte had more than his share of the good things of this world!"

"The good things? Mister, he hain't got a blamed thing more than a barrel of money, and an appetite for another barrel of it." — Chicago Tribune.

"Determination" For Dinner

In her book, "The Suffragette," Miss E. Sylvia Pankhurst tells this incident of a "hunger strike" by one of the "militants:" "On being denied treatment as a political offender Miss Dunlop warned the governor of the prison that she should refuse to eat anything until she had gained her point. Though not possessed of the vigor and reserve force that belong to youth, and of a fragile constitution, Miss Dunlop went cheerfully at her task.

"When she refused the ordinary prison fare, dainty food was placed in her cell and left there day and night. But if the temptation to touch it existed, she was delivered therefrom. 'What are you going to have for dinner today?' the doctor would ask. 'My determination,' she would reply. Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday passed.

"By Friday it was evident she would carry the hunger strike even to the gates of death. So, on Friday evening she was set free. The fourteen women who had been sentenced the day of her release decided to follow her example."

Stamps in Coils

According to the report of the Postmaster-General at Washington, the day is not far distant when all stamps will be sold from coils or rolls, instead of in sheets. Inquiry revealed the fact that at present stamps in coils are used only in certain makes of vending machines, but it was stated the Department is prepared to furnish these coils to any purchaser. Each coil is made up to contain either 500 or 1,000 stamps, arranged to run endwise or sidewise, and issued with or without perforations between the stamps, as desired by the purchaser. The coils are made by cutting sheets of stamps into strips, pasting the strips together and rolling them upon pasteboard cores. This method is both laborious and expensive to the Government, and will undoubtedly be improved upon with increased demand for the coiled stamps.

The officials claim that stamps in coils will be more convenient for use by business houses, for retail sale by post offices, and for general use, and it is understood that steps have been taken looking to changes in the method of printing the stamps, which will enable the Department to profitably meet the demand anticipated for coiled stamps as soon as their advantages are more widely understood.

Of Interest to Philatelists

New stamp issues may soon be expected from Portugal, Australia, St. Helena.

A State Philatelic Association has been formed among Minnesota collectors.

Nicaragua's revenue stamps are being surcharged for postage use, some of them, oddly enough, on the reverse side.

He Wanted a Chance

Representative Gardner, of Massachusetts, apropos of an immigration case he had investigated, said the other day:

"The trouble with this immigrant was that he didn't know what was good for him. We are all more or less like that. The things that are best for us are the things we most dislike."

Mr. Gardner smiled.

"A woman," he said, "was complaining about the depredations of her dog.

"'Only yesterday,' she cried, 'he broke into the larder.'

"'Dear me,' said her interlocutor, 'did he eat much?'

"'He ate,' she replied, 'every blessed thing except the dog biscuit.'"—Los Angeles Times.

The Art of Conversation

"Tell me," pleaded the artless maid, "wherein lies the secret of the art of conversation."

The sage affected the attitude he was wont to assume when in the act of imparting wisdom, and said:

"My child, listen."

"I am listening," breathlessly she answered.

"Well, my child," he rejoined, "that is the art of conversing agreeably."

The Girl's Handicap

In her pretty new frock sister Mabel felt quite proud as she sat on the front step and watched some boys playing on the sidewalk.

After a time one little boy came up to talk to her, and to admire in his rough little way her bright, shiny shoes and pink sash.

"See my nice square cut waist," exclaimed the girlie, "and my nice coral beads! Don't you wish you wuz a girl?"

"No, siree," replied the boy. "I wouldn't want to be any girl at all, because lookie how much more neck you have to wash."—Youngstown Telegram.

DID NOT HAVE TO CALL THE DOCTOR

One Box of Them Cured Mrs. Mary A. Cook's Rheumatism, From Which She Had Suffered For Fourteen Years.

Mannheim, Ont.—(Special) — How quickly and easily Rheumatism can be cured when you use the right means is shown in the case of Mrs. Mary A. Cook, well known and highly respected here. In an interview regarding her cure, of which all the village knows, Mrs. Cook says:

"I had Rheumatism so bad that sometimes I would sit up nearly all night.

"I first thought I would try the doctors, but luckily I decided to first try Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"They cured me, and I didn't have to try the doctors. And just to think that after fourteen years of suffering one box of Dodd's Kidney Pills should cure! I will recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to anyone who suffers from Rheumatism."

"Yes, it is easy to cure Rheumatism when you go the right way about it. Rheumatism is caused by uric acid in the blood. If the kidneys are working right they will strain all the uric acid out of the blood and there can be no Rheumatism. Dodd's Kidney Pills always make the Kidneys work right.

C.P.R. Double Track to Brandon

In its constant effort to give its patrons the very best of transportation facilities, the Canadian Pacific Railway is making a special effort to complete the laying of its double track between Winnipeg and Brandon by the end of the year. In fact, C. P. R. officials stated recently there was no doubt but that the new tracks would be completed and in operation by the end of December. It is 135 miles from Winnipeg to Brandon, but the contractors on the job are pushing forward the work and are making good progress. Between Portage la Prairie and Brandon, which is 77½ miles, all the grading is completed, and up to date seventy-five per cent. of the track has been laid.

When the work is completed the Canadian Pacific will have a double track between Fort William and Port Arthur and Brandon, and if the company's traffic continues to increase at its present rate a couple of years will see the double track stretching from the head of the Great Lakes through the three Prairie Provinces to Calgary. Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, president of the C. P. R., hinted at this in his annual report to the Directors of the company last month.

While this is the longest single piece of double tracking being done by the C. P. R., there are a couple of smaller sections in Saskatchewan between Moose Jaw and Caron and Moose Jaw and Pasqua. Grading on these lines is about 85 per cent. finished, but no rails have been laid as yet.

The Biggest of All Nests

The nests of the jungle fowl, so-called, in Australia are not only the largest of nests, but the heaviest as well.

These nests are built in the form of great mounds, the average measurement in height being fifteen feet. In circumference they are about one hundred and fifty feet. They are constructed in secluded, sheltered spots, and are skilfully interwoven with leaves, grass and twigs, together with such other suitable material the fowl has been able to obtain.

The bush turkey employs a similar system in the construction of its nest though its home is more comprehensive in design. The shape is pyramidal. Australian naturalists aver that the nests of the bush turkey are sometimes so large that the services of several men are required to move them.

Protruding ears with square corners are not considered necessary perquisites to the beauty of the Shoshone Indians in Nevada, as was proved recently when a full-blooded buck of that tribe invoked the use of surgery that his looks might be improved.

Johnny Joyce, a Shoshone Indian, visited the office of a Reno physician and asked that his square and protruding ears be reduced in size. In explanation, he stated that the Indian maiden of his choice refused to marry him on account of the manner in which his organs of hearing had grown.

The operation was performed successfully, and Joyce, with his hearing appendages trimmed on the bias, compensated the physician for his labor and prepared to return to his home and his bride.

Rebuking Dishonesty

P. F. Willis, of Dallas, the leader of the Texas delegates to the Associated Advertising Clubs' Convention in Boston, was condemning dishonest advertising.

"The dishonest advertiser," he said, "gets shown up in the long run. He fares the same as Gus Blake.

"Gus Blake was a trolley conductor. One day when the car was crowded, a gentleman halted Gus in the aisle, and said, extending a nickle:

"'Here you are, my man.'

"'But, sir,' said Gus, in an astonished tone, 'you paid before!'

"The gentleman then frowned and said in a very loud, stern voice:

"'Yes, I know; but this is for the company.'"—Exchange.

The Real Reporter

When the chief reporter of the Poppleton Post bought an aeroplane, the proprietor summoned the editor to discuss his successor.

"For, of course," observed the proprietor, "we shall soon have a vacancy."

"How about Jones?" suggested the editor.

"Jones?" queried the proprietor, doubtfully, "I thought he was rather a failure."

"On the contrary, he's one of our most promising recruits," replied the editor. "Yes, Jones is a genius, sir! You remember the Smalham Railway smash? Well, Jones found the broken rail that caused the disaster three hours before the express was due. He sat down by the line, wrote up the account while he waited, and sent us his report the very minute after the wreck took place."—London Answers.

"Every man can find work if he uses his brains," said Andrew Carnegie in an after-dinner address.

"We should all be like the piano-tuner I once met out west.

"'Why,' I said to him—for we were in a wild, unsettled country—'surely piano-tuning cannot be very lucrative here. I shouldn't imagine that pianos were very plentiful in this region.'

"'No, sir, they're not,' said the piano-tuner, 'but I make a pretty fair income by tightening up barbed wire fences.'"—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

SUFFERERS FROM PILES

Zam-Buk Has Cured These

Friction on the hemorrhoid veins that are swollen, inflamed and gorged with blood, is what causes the terrible pain and stinging and smarting of piles. Zam-Buk applied at night will be found to give ease before morning. Thousands of persons have proved this. Why not be guided by the experience of others?

Mr. Thomas Pearson, of Prince Albert, Sask., writes: "I must thank you for the benefit I have received from Zam-Buk. Last summer I suffered greatly from piles. I started to use Zam-Buk and found it gave me relief, so I continued it, and after using three or four boxes I am pleased to say it has effected a complete cure."

Mr. G. A. Dufresne, 183-185 St. Joseph street, St. Roche, Que., P.Q., writes: "I can highly recommend Zam-Buk to anyone who suffers from piles."

Magistrate Sanford, of Weston, King's Co., N.S., says: "I suffered long from itching piles, but Zam-Buk has now cured me."

Mr. William Kenty, of Upper Nine Mile River, Hants Co., N.S., says: "I suffered terribly from piles, the pain at times being almost unbearable. I tried various ointments, but anything I tried failed to do me the slightest good. I was tired of trying various remedies, when I heard of Zam-Buk, and thought as a last resource I would give this balm a trial. After a very short time Zam-Buk effected a complete cure."

Zam-Buk is also a sure cure for skin injuries and diseases, eczema, ulcers, varicose veins, cuts, burns, bruises, chaps, cold sores, etc. 50c. box all druggists and stores, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse harmful imitations. Try Zam-Buk Soap, 25c. tablet.

Be Patient

They are such dear familiar feet that go
Along the path with ours—feet fast or slow,
But trying to keep pace; if they mistake
Or tread upon some flower that we would take
Upon our breast, or bruise some reed,
Or crush, perhaps, until it bleed,
We must be mute,
Not turning quickly to impute
Grave fault; for they and we
Have such a little way to go, can be
Together such a little while upon the way—
We must be patient while we may.

So many little faults we find,
We see them, for not blind
Is love. We see them, but if you and I
Perhaps remember them some by and by,
They will not be
Faults then, grave faults, to you and me,
But just odd ways, mistakes, or even less—
Remembrances to bless.
Days change so many things, yes hours;
We see so differently in sun and showers;
Mistaken words tonight
May be so cherished by tomorrow's night—
We will be patient, for we know
There's such a little way to go.
—George Klingle.

Why He Didn't Apologize

"I have no apology to make for being a new member and addressing the House. First, I believe a new member has the same right to the floor as the older members, and, secondly, I wish to state that it is not through choice that I am a new member, for I made two previous efforts that were unsuccessful." (Laughter).—Speech of Hon. Frank Buchanan, of Illinois, in the House of Representatives, March 23rd.

Dummy Royal Address

A curious slip in the arrangements for the King's visit to Wales has just come to light.

The address which was presented to His Majesty on behalf of Montgomeryshire County Council was a dummy, consisting of some parchment tied up with ribbon.

The County Council had had prepared an ornate illuminated expression of welcome and of pleasure at the objects of Their Majesties' visits to Wales.

The clerk had charge of the address but his luggage miscarried on the journey from Carnarvon to Machynlleth.

His Majesty was promptly notified of the incident, and some parchment was secured, enclosed in the most appropriate case that could be found, and, tied around with ribbon, was presented as the real address.

Sized Himself Up

A very small boy, who was evidently a newspaper vendor by profession, sat on a step in the Ward. He was so soiled in his appearance that even he was bound to recognize the fact. The canvasser and his friend had the attention attracted by his begrimed countenance, his small frame and his knowing face.

"How old do you think he is?" said one.

"I don't suppose that he is more than nine years," replied the other.

"Huh!" ejaculated the youngster, "do you think I got as dirty as this in nine years?"—From the Canadian Courier.

Where Feet Are Hands

The people of Japan are not the only Asiatics who do strange things. In the native quarters of the towns of India the odd spectacle may be seen of a butcher taking a piece of meat in his hands and cutting it in two with a knife held firmly between his great and next toes.

The native Indian shoemaker does not use his last, but turns the last with his feet, while his hands are busy shaping it. The Hindoo carpenter holds with his great toe the board he is cutting, and the wood turner handles his tools as well with his feet as he can with his hands.

The use of their feet to assist their hands in work is not merely the result of practice, but is chiefly due to the fact that the Hindoo foot is quite different from ours. The great toe can be moved freely in all directions, while the first and second toes are separated by a wide space, often as much as five-eighths of an inch across at the base of the toes and two inches at their extremities.

Biographical Evidence

When Joseph F. Johnson arrived in Washington as a member of the United States senate from the glorious and gallant State of Alabama, Senator Burrows, of Michigan, took a great fancy to him. One day in the cloakroom Burrows turned to another senator and said:

"DuPont, stand up. I want you to meet Johnson of Alabama."

The man from Delaware rose to his feet.

"DuPont," said Johnson, taking the proffered hand, "I believe you're the infernal Yankee who shot me at Cedar Creek."

"Well, well," commented the Delaware senator, somewhat puzzled, "what makes you think so?"

"I see by the two pages of your biography in the Congressional Directory," explained Johnson, "that you commanded practically every regiment in the Union army during the Civil War. Some infernal Yankee shot me, and I don't see who other it could be than you."

Dropped Letters

..A Clue at Least

Because Mrs. Stanton is the daughter of one doctor, the daughter-in-law of another, and the wife of a third, nearly everybody was much amused when she attended a course of "first aid" lectures, and received instruction as humbly as the other villagers.

Dr. Stanton is still amused — although his wife cannot see why. Not long ago, when recounting the facts to a visitor, also a physician, Dr. Stanton added:

"And you can't tell the difference between drunkenness and apoplexy, can you, Julia?"

"Certainly, I can!" retorted Mrs. Stanton.

"How?" returned the visitor.

"By the smell," Mrs. Stanton replied, with dignity. — From Youth's Companion.
